Making this temporary life the biggest goal.

2-) According to the passage, what is the real condition of someone who lives only for this world, even if life looks pleasant?

Such a person is in a state like Hell, even if things seem good on the outside.

3-) What kind of person gains happiness in both this life and the next?

A person who sincerely turns toward the eternal life.

4-) How does the passage describe the world for the person focused on the next life?

It is like a place of waiting before entering Paradise.

5-) What helps that person bear the hardships of this world?

Seeing this life as temporary helps him stay patient and continue.

6-) Besides enduring hardship, what other response should he show?

He should be thankful while being patient.

7-) What contrast is made between appearances and reality in the passage?

A person may seem to be in comfort outwardly but be miserable in reality, while another may face hardship outwardly but still have true happiness.

8-) What is the central lesson of the whole passage?

Your final goal shapes your real condition, so you should aim for the eternal life, not just this temporary world.
