Cevap 4 It takes only a small part of the day, just one hour out of twenty-four.	Cevap 3 It comes from the illusion of endless worldly life and constant enjoyment.	Cevap 2 Even the next year and even the next day.	Cevap 1 It acts as if life will continue for a very long time and so treats worship as something that can always be delayed.
Cevap 8 It is slipping away in a wasted way.	Cevap 7 He would not resent it; instead he would feel sincere desire and joy in doing it.	Cevap 6 It becomes a means to reach true happiness in the everlasting life.	Cevap 5 It is presented as beautiful, uplifting, easy, and full of mercy.
Cevap 12 To show that the self has no certainty about how long it will live.	Cevap 11 Whether its life is everlasting.	Cevap 10 The speaker's own lower self.	Cevap 9 Temporary enjoyment in this world is being set against lasting success in the next life.

13 What false assumption leads the self to complain?	14 What truth about human life is presented against that assumption?	15 What proportion of the day is given for worship?	16 What kind of deed is that hour spent on?

Cevap 16 A noble act of serving Allah that is pleasant, manageable, and compassionate in nature.	Cevap 15 One hour from the full twenty-four hours.	Cevap 14 Human life is short and is already passing away.	Cevap 13 It assumes it will stay in the world for a long time to enjoy itself.
Cevap 20 Ongoing personal enjoyment without end.	Cevap 19 It asks whether the self has any certain guarantee that it will live very long or even very soon.	Cevap 18 Boredom should turn into eagerness and wholesome pleasure.	Cevap 17 Real success and happiness in eternal life.
Cevap 24 The belief in endless life causes boredom, while awareness of life's shortness leads to motivation and joy.	Cevap 23 It is a compassionate means for the servant to gain lasting good, not a harsh burden.	Cevap 22 Because the cost is small while the spiritual return is immense.	Cevap 21 Because life in this world is temporary and quickly moving away.
