Cevap 4 Any creature or person mentioned there, including animals, people, customers, and even thieves.	Cevap 3 Whatever is consumed from it can count like charity on the worker's behalf.	Cevap 2 The work must be done with a sound and sincere intention.	Cevap 1 That person receives a share in the worshipful praise made by the plants and trees he cultivates.
Cevap 8 He thinks he will soon leave the world anyway, so he sees no reason to keep struggling.	Cevap 7 He becomes tired of his work, loses heart, and drifts into laziness.	Cevap 6 Because the person misses both spiritual gains, loses motivation, and is deprived of a deeper meaning in his work.	Cevap 5 He must work for Allah's sake and stay within what Allah allows, while seeing himself as a caretaker distributing Allah's property.
Cevap 12 It teaches that ordinary work can bring spiritual reward when it is done with the right intention and in obedience to Allah.	Cevap 11 It represents a hidden spiritual gain a person receives through sincere work in the garden.	Cevap 10 One becomes spiritually bankrupt and discouraged, while the other becomes more purposeful, hopeful, and hardworking.	Cevap 9 He sees both lawful work and worship as ways to prepare for the grave and the next life, so he works with more energy.

13 What does the “second mine” add beyond the first one?	14 Does the second reward depend only on the produce itself, or also on the worker’s outlook and method?	15 Why is the worker told to see himself as a distributor rather than an owner in an absolute sense?	16 What happens to the person who abandons the prescribed prayers, according to the passage?

Cevap 16 He loses these two great gains and ends up with weakened spirit and poor motivation.	Cevap 15 Because the passage teaches that the true ownership belongs to Allah, and the worker is only delivering what Allah provides.	Cevap 14 It also depends on the worker's outlook and method, especially acting within Allah's permission and for His sake.	Cevap 13 It adds the reward of ongoing charity when others benefit from what the garden produces.
Cevap 20 Prayer does not take away from meaningful work; instead, it gives work spiritual value, purpose, and lasting reward.	Cevap 19 He wants to prepare light for the grave and provision for the life to come.	Cevap 18 His interest fades, and he becomes worn out and detached from his work.	Cevap 17 He is spiritually emptied of the rewards and meanings that could have enriched his life and work.
Cevap 24 Both expected and unexpected users are included, from people and animals to even those who take it wrongly.	Cevap 23 Because the outward action alone is not enough; the inner purpose turns the work into something spiritually rewarding.	Cevap 22 A share in the glorification and praise connected with those living things.	Cevap 21 The lesson is explained through the example of working in a garden.
