1-) What main example from nature is used to show Allah's power and wisdom?

The passage points to spring, when countless kinds of plants and animals are brought into being, arranged, and cared for together.

2-) How does the passage connect large numbers with the idea of unity?

It argues that such wide, coordinated work can only come from one Lord, not many separate powers.

3-) What can a reader infer from the phrase about no mistakes happening?

The One managing creation has complete control and knowledge.

4-) Besides creating birds, what else is done for them?

They are given what they need to fly and to find their food and living.

5-) What relationship between plants and animals is described?

Plants are shown serving and supporting animals.

6-) What does that example teach us about Allah's care?

His mercy appears through created means in daily life.

7-) Why does the passage mention both giant and tiny things together?

To show that the same order, skill, and wisdom appear in all levels of creation.

8-) What do the examples of fly and eagle, and seed and tree, help the reader compare?

They help the reader compare small and great creations and see that both are equally easy for Allah.

9-) What examples show that huge and visible things are also easy for Allah?

The Milky Way and the solar system.

10-) What is the simple return asked from people?
